I. BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE

Based on its long historical origin and international academic practice, an honorary degree (honoris causa, "for the sake of the honor" in Latin), is an extra-ordinary academic degree awarded to a prominent individual (who may be an alumnus/alumni, or one who has never been connected with the awarding institution).

Consistent with the institution’s mission, vision, objectives, goals and values, the honorary doctorate degree shall be awarded in recognition of an individual’s meritorious contribution/s to the advancement of a field in a particular discipline, through exemplary accomplishment/s, and/or contribution/s in instruction, research and practice; personal humanitarian/philanthropic engagements which led to the development of the community, society, and the nation as a whole.

Exemplary accomplishment is any creative work, scholarly output, productive advocacy, and philanthropic work in the corresponding field that have brought honor and distinction to the institution and the country at large, as well as contribution to significant advancement to his/her particular field of endeavor/interest.

The honorary doctorate degree is conferred with an appropriate ceremony as may be determined by the awarding HEI, usually during commencement exercises or a special convocation designated for the purpose. There should be only one (1) honorary degree recipient per ceremony.
The recipient should be present during the ceremony for the degree to be awarded. Under the new normal, virtual presence of the recipient through an online platform, is allowed.

If a recipient dies after notification and before the ceremony, a degree may be awarded posthumously.
